

Global leaders unite strengths and technologies to improve quality, delivery and cost.

Gilbarco Veeder-Root, a company formed from the uniting of Gilbarco and Veeder-Root plus Red Jacket, now stands as the leading provider of low-cost, profit-making equipment and services for petroleum retailers. Together, we provide the widest range of offerings in fuel dispensing and control, site and retail management, and support services – all backed by the world's largest distribution network. The three entities have been known as industry innovators since before the age of the automobile.

Gilbarco® – global leader in fuel dispensing equipment, fully integrated point-of-sale systems, payment solutions and management information systems

Veeder-Root® – global leader in automatic tank gauging and fuel management systems

Red Jacket® – global leader in submersible pumps and pressurized line leak detectors

These leaders were united by the Danaher Corporation, a global corporation comprised of 50 companies and more than $4 billion in annual revenues. You now have a global brand backed by the financial stability of a large, diverse corporation that will support long-term development and deployment of emerging technologies.

Gilbarco Veeder-Root's core commitment is to you, our customers. Our goal is to provide the real-world answers you need, by listening to you and working with you to solve your problems. With our combined strengths promising unprecedented integration, no other company is better prepared to lower your costs and increase your profits. And our commitment and stability ensure that new products will continue to do so in years to come.
